Dear Attorney Mr. Timothy Kohn,

It has been a long time since I worked with you last, but here is where we left off.

On August 07, 2018 I drove my car too near the Father's apartment and violated an order of protection that was entered 5 days prior on August 02, 2018, alleging that I was e-mailing things about the Dad to people and that this warranted an Emergency protection order, which was mislabled the Family Case 15-F-153, as well as the one with the child. They are both labled 15-F-153 and the wrong one was prosecuted when it came before the Judge, who prosecuted the one pertaining to the child, instead of the one pertaining to the Father, as the police report and ticket alleges was the one I violated. The Dad was driving on the other side of town earlier that day and I passed him while driving. Then I come to a house by his house to talk to a girl I was scheduled to meet with when I saw a police officer drive down towards Kevin's place and drove past to see what was going on. I was arrested on Pearl st. when they pulled me over for allegedly violating the order of protection even when I wasn't aware I had gone too close to be in violation of any order of protection. this house sits far back from the street and down an alley so felt I was in plenty distance to be deemed as acceptable. This was not any means to be a violent intruder. I was taken to LaSalle County Jail and held without bond until a further Sunday hearing where I was alleged as a high risk offender and that I should be held there on no bond until trial, by the State's Attorney's prosecuter. I was held in Jail several days without bail to wait for my risk assessment where I got questioned on behalf of the case pertaining to the child instead of the case pertaining to the Father by a counselor from

It was made aware to her that I was not any threat of harm to her and felt I was not in violation of the o.p. because I was unsure I was too close, and visiting a friends house near by, plus, I had seen the Father's car across town earlier that day and so knew I wasn't too close to him. She alleged she would have to automatically make me a medium risk instead of a low risk, because a child was involved, even though it was the o.p. pertaining to the Father that I violated, according to the paperwork. I told her that I was unwilling to violate the order of protection and was not trying to violate it at all. She had her doubts, because of a child's involvement, she said. I told her that I want to be out and return to court to represent myself in another case I have going that I was trying to obtain arbitration for, which was the explanation for my e-mails. I told her I would never try anything crazy and am very used to going to court for myself and respecting the process so would like the same exception for this case. I had her label me as a medium risk at the next court date and my bond was set to $800.00. There were no other options afforded to me at this time.

I sat in jail and was found unfit to stand trial by the following events: I sat there and wondered if I should continue my cleanse that I was doing outside of jail by asking for enemas and laxatives. By that point I was already administering enemas on myself in there by squirting water up my anus through the use of a water bottle I ordered off commisary and sutured a toothpaste bottle to the tip to make the tip small-just like a real enema. This was so that I wouldnt rupture my anus through admistering the entire water bottle opening up my butt. I asked the doctor if I could have enemas and he said he would have to see proof prior to ordering them as to what they were needed for. I then asked him if he could look at my scars for evidence and he said that would be fine. The doctor perscribed me laxatives, Stool softeners and enemas. Right then, the nurse escorted me back to my cell and announced to the jailer how the Doctor ordered her to search my cell and rid the water bottles from my possession, further prolonging any health problem I may have needed them for to help avoid.

I mentioned to the Doctor in a complaint letter how the Nurse had taken them from me despite us talking about how I might benifit from using them and thats why he ordered the enemas and looked at my surgical scars for proof to order them. I was with the Nurse the whole time, when he examined me and when we walked back to my cell and I did not hear him say to take away the water bottles. She was making this up to harass, threaten and intimidate me.
Then the Doctor reacted negatively to the complaint letter I had written about the Nurse by allowing me to sit in his office while he had his way with me in a negative way by the following:
1: He threatened to poison the water by alleging I had claimed they had poisoned the water when I had not mentioned anything of the sort. Then he accused me of making up the health concern because he alleged I was delusional and was making up the need for the enema because of me having a mental problem or something.
